Free side saddle clinic offered

There will be a free side saddle clinic, August 30*, at 1:30, at the home of Bill and Linda Price.
Three ladies will demonstrate the fine art of riding horses: Ellen Noll from Meriden, who has ridden with the Wild Women of the Old West and is currently rebuilding and repainting side saddles; Jo Rensch, from Edmond, Oklahoma, who is a certified judge and instructor; and Linda Price, who began riding side saddle, during the Kansas Centennial in 1961. Price will provide a horse and side saddle for those who wish to sit on a horse saddle.

Electric fencing and livestock watering workshop offered

Mark Green, NRCS Specialist, from Missouri will return to Kansas to offer his popular workshop on electric fencing and livestock watering options September 8 in Salina. The workshop will be held at the Salina Ambassador Hotel, 1616 W. Crawford Street. Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. and program starts until 4:00 p.m.
Water availability is the number one limiting factor for grazing possibilities. Use of electric fencing will increase grazing options that can in turn benefit range health, the soil, as well as improve production and profitability.
At the September 8 workshop,

Mark Green will demonstrate the latest in electric fence products, the pros and cons of various materials used in electric fence construction and installation techniques. Green will also cover livestock watering topics: water distribution for improved grazing distribution, permanent and portable tanks, above and below ground piping, and water sources-wells, streams, springs and ponds.

Kansas NFO meeting passed resolutions

Kansas NFO, a group marketing farm organization passed three important resolutions at their state meeting in Florence August 5.
The first was a resolution opposing any tax policy that would shift and increase taxes for agriculture producers such as sales and property taxes. They also asked for a roll back on the recent changes in income tax policy in order to avoid other tax changes which may impact agriculture.
The second resolution was designed to protect farmers and their intellectual property rights related to "Big Data" collection and information sharing policies. Big Data includes fertilizer, seed, and crop yield information that is uploaded to a "cloud" for storage. Big Data is one of the fastest growing information technology areas because when aggregated (combined) it can become extremely valuable to seed, fertilizer companies, commodity speculators, and other users. NFO supports information availability, but supports a discussion on farmers ownership rights to their own intellectual property.
The third resolution was in support and implementation of a water plan for Kansas to address decreasing water reserves in some areas.

Following the state meeting, there was a tour of irrigation systems in Moundridge area. Dr. Danny Rogers, K-State Extension Irrigation Specialist, Tim Boese, Manager of Equity Body Groundwater Management District #3, and local irrigation representatives shared water conservation ideas at Prairie Lake Farms and B & G Farms near Moundridge.
Kansas NFO is a grain, livestock and dairy marketing organization. They offer individualized marketing plans, but negotiate and make bulk commodity sales by combining individual farmers sales together for volume price increases.
Ray, Kuhnman Salinas, moderated the event. Pete Lorenz, Beloit, and Nick Leventodofsky, Beloitville, facilitated a grain marketing discussion. Thanks for a term to the national board of Directors was Carl Wohlschlag, Jerehogs.
